Car Strikes Home In Stroudsburg

AN EASTON man was injured Sunday at 3:40 a.m., when his car struck the foundation of a double house at 11-13 N. Third St., Stroudsburg.

Stroudsburg Police said Charles J. Cramsey, 22, of 118 Northampton St., Easton, was treated at the General Hospital of Monroe County for a forehead cut and released.

Cramsey told police that he apparently fell asleep at the wheel as he was traveling west on McConnell St.

Damage to the house, owned by Chester Phillips of 558 Main St., Stroudsburg, was slight. Damage to the car was estimated at $650.

Police are continuing their investigation. Cramsey, a serviceman, was permitted to return to his base.

AN estimated $800 damages were accumulated by a car operated by Douglas C. Neyhart, 17, of Stroudsburg, RD 5, yesterday at 2:05 a.m. when it struck a tree four miles west of Stroudsburg.

Neyhart told Stroudsburg State Police that he swerved to keep from hitting an oncoming car in the road and the car went off the highway on the right side. As the car regained the highway, it swerved across and struck a tree on the left side, near the intersection of Route 209 and Legislative Route 45033.

The car, owned by Neyhart's father, Walter S. Neyhart, had a shattered windshield and bent frame.

Court Set For Philly Probe Pleas

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The State Supreme Court Monday set Wednesday for a hearing on several appeals challenging the legality of a special grand jury investigation of alleged corruption in Philadelphia's City Hall.

Chief Justice John C. Bell Jr., after conferring three hours with 15 attorneys and then on the telephone with his six court colleagues, set the date.

Bell told newsmen that six lawyers would argue the issues, three on each side. But he declined to say who the attorneys would be.

The grand jury probe was ordered last June by Common Pleas Judge Eugene Alessandrini on petition of the Republican Alliance, an independent GOP political group. Alessandrini is a Republican and uncle of Walter Alessandrini, campaign manager for William W. Scranton, GOP candidate for governor.

Richardson Dilworth, Democratic gubernatorial candidate and former Mayor of Philadelphia — whose administration the past three years is the subject of the investigation — has charged the probe is "strictly political" and urged that it be held quickly.

Bell promised a decision as soon as possible, perhaps before the Nov. 6 election.

Leukemia Drive Nets $100.55

A VOLUNTEER team of 10 Barrett teenagers joined the "Teens March Against Leukemia" Sunday and collected a total of $100.55 for the charity fund drive.

Canvassing throughout the area between 2 p.m. and 4 p.m., Carol Smith, Laurene DeLuca, Sandra Reese, Stephanie Larson, Donald Sommers, Donna Hardy, Nan Meryweather, Barry Sommers and Elaine Larsen, turned in their donations at the home of Mrs. Edward Bevan.

The funds were then turned over to the Monroe County chairman, Miss Jimmie Shiner, Blakeslee, to be used at the St. Jude's Hospital and research center, Memphis, Tenn.

The hospital was founded by comedian Danny Thomas, to aid American children regardless of race, creed or color.

More than 90 percent of the funds collected throughout the area will be used for the center due to the fact that the workers are all volunteers.

The Barrett Township drive was sponsored by the Barrett Junior Women's Club.

Both cars were totally demolished and had to be towed from the scene.

Stroudsburg Police are continuing the investigation.

U. S. As A Jobmaker

Persistent unemployment was one of the issues raised in the last Presidential election, and it will be one of the issues in the Congressional elections soon to come. Whatever else the Administration's record may be, its record as a maker of jobs is about the same as any other Administration's. Poor.

True, a few tens of thousands more people work for the Federal Government itself. True, Washington has doled out $38 million in grants and loans to local communities to get new industries started. True, Congress is being asked to pass a $900 million emergency public works law in case things get worse than they are.

But all this involves surprisingly few new jobs. Obviously Federal employment, now considered too large at two and a half million, can't absorb many of the four million jobless.

The $38 million in grants and loans doesn't go very far, either. The 100th such grant was for $285,000 to a Pennsylvania town to lure a printing plant that would employ 250. That's about $11,000 per job — and at that rate the whole $392½ million available for such purposes would finance only 35,000 jobs or so.

That $900 million emergency public works program sounds impressive, but it would provide work for only 125,000 persons for two years. Then it would be gone and they'd be jobless again.

That about covers what Washington is doing and proposes to do about unemployment, and if all of it worked and nobody else lost his job we'd still have about three and three quarters million unemployed, plus any newcomers to the work force who couldn't find jobs. As Washington figures we'll need about a million new jobs a year, that 4 million figure could go up as easily as down.

Unemployment will be solved, if it ever is, by private business and industry. When investors have money to invest and reason to invest it, they will build and hire, and that will make jobs. Right now, tax rates make it hard to accumulate the money and unwise to take much risk in new ventures.

If Washington bankers to cure unemployment, that's where to tackle the problem.

Pennsylvania Builds Its Schools

By treading with extremely well-padded feet very close to the toes of the law, Pennsylvania has for 15 years been engaging in one of the most massive school building programs anywhere in the country. Work started last week on the 500th school accepted by the State School Building Authority.

The law is skirted because of limits on debt that may be incurred either by the districts or the state. The Authority may issue its own bonds outside these limits. So it puts up the buildings and leases them back to the districts under terms that will amortize the bonds, which run from 30 to 50 years. To sidestep another legal technicality, there is no formal agreement that the Authority will turn over the schools to the districts when the bonds are paid, but a tacit understanding does exist, which everybody expects will be honored.

The whole program has run into some hundreds of millions of dollars, and does not include building which has been done in 14 counties without Authority help. Philadelphia has been one of these. Local authorities have been used in some places instead of the state-created body.

If other states had been both as zealous in foreseeing the need for rapid expansion, and in finding methods of financing, no need would exist for a federal building program. It is hardly fair that the states which have met their own needs by taxing their own citizens should now be expected to kick in to pay for the others.

The 1962 Campaign

The Founding Fathers gave the people the opportunity to decide themselves on government policies and personnel every second year. Although a Presidential term is four years, and may be repeated for a second period of four years, he comes before the people every second year for judgement. The 1962 campaign concerns not only Senators, Representatives and Governors who come up for election but also the President.

In Parliamentary countries, such as Great Britain, a vote of confidence or lack of confidence can be indicated either by the defeat of government measures or by the by-elections; that is, the filling of seats in Parliament which for one reason or another have become vacant.

In the United States, there is no method by which a government falls because we do not elect a government in the Parliamentary sense; we elect a President and Vice President for stated terms — four year terms. Come what may, they remain in office.

In the present Congress, the Democrats have a majority which normally would mean that Congress would support the President's program for legislation. This has not proved to be so. So far as one can discern without taking recourse to politics, President Kennedy remains a popular figure with the people. Nevertheless, the Democratic Party is splitting up in an amazing manner.

In New York City, for instance, the Reformers, led by Governor Lehman and Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, won a victory in the last Mayoralty election. They killed off the State Boss, Carmine DeSapio, but they managed to split the party. This has been aggravated by the search for a gubernatorial candidate.

To discover the right man, the leadership forsook all political experience and knowledge and resorted to a pollster who came up with an obscure personality who had been in business with the pollster.

The result is that the Democratic split has widened. Secretly it was argued that because the President is a Roman Catholic and the Mayor is a Roman Catholic, the candidate for Governor should be a Jew. This is an insult to both the Roman Catholics and the Jews. Jews are sensitive about being cat-paws for politicians.

In recent years, two popular and respected Jews were nominated for Mayor of New York, Judge Jonah Goldstein and Attorney General Louis Leflowitz. Both were defeated.

But when the pollster, Louis Harris, produced a poll indicating that the hardly known Robert Morgenthau could defeat Nelson Rockefeller for Governor, it made everyone laugh. It was so obviously wrong. Whereupon the split in the Democratic Party widened.

In Massachusetts, the struggle between Edward McCormack and Ted Kennedy has produced a bitterness which will reflect itself in Congress. The Speaker of the House should not have been made a personal antagonist.

In the so-called Solid South, the split is on an ideological basis, namely, the opposition to the Administration's attitude toward desegregation. The Solid South is Democratic because of the Civil War and the Ku Klux Klan during the Reconstruction. On the other questions, the South is not so solid.

Now a Democratic Administration has smashed the solidity of the South. Texas has elected a Republican Senator. There is no telling what will happen in the 1962 Congressional Election, but whatever happens, the Democrats are antagonistic to this Administration.

It may be that the President is pursuing a policy of ignoring opposition when he is sure that he is in the right. That is a sound position to take in a second term; in a first term a President usually seeks to hold the Congress with his party in the majority and to arrange to be re-elected.

Surely if the President is concerned only with re-election, he would not have opened the way for Nelson Rockefeller's victory in the current gubernatorial election by permitting the leadership to support a totally unknown candidate, Robert Morgenthau, whose principal virtue is that he is the grandson of our former Ambassador to Turkey and whose father was Secretary of the Treasury by Franklin D. Roosevelt — an inept appointment as it turned out to be. And the excuse for this appointment is that it is practical politics in 1962 to nominate a distinguished Jewish name. Do we vote for names or for Americans?

Somebody goofed. The split in the Democratic Party reminds one of the split in the Republican Party after 1932 which was never healed — not even during the Eisenhower Administration.

Harrisburg — It's being laid on the line this year in Pennsylvania — the prestige line, that is.

Both Republicans and Democrats nationally have a tremendous stake in what happens in the Keystone State November 6 — the determination of which party takes over the reins on Capitol Hill for the next four years.

Some years ago — prior to 1955, it might be noted — there was little on the "prestige front" that enveloped Pennsylvania insofar as its gubernatorial campaigns were concerned.

The reason for this was not so much the fact that Pennsylvania wasn't a critically important state — but rather that no one of any note on the national level paid much attention to the political burping for the simple reason that the outcomes were pretty much foregone conclusions.

For Republicans it was one of those "secure" states — a state in which little effort need be expended from the national level. The outcome was pretty much routine.

For Democrats on the other hand, Pennsylvania was simply a "lost cause" — one of those facets you tolerate because there's little seemingly that can Mort Cooper pitched the Cards to a victory over the Dodgers reducing Brooklyn's lead to one game in the pennant race.

In the American League it was the Yankees in first and Boston in second, a close second. In the National League it was Brooklyn in first with St. Louis pushing like mad to bump them out. (Did they?)

How many remember in 1915 when there was a rumor that the Lackawanna Railroad station in East Stroudsburg was going to be moved elsewhere?

The Pennsylvania Story

be done about it. In other words, effort was concentrated in more hopeful states.

The influx — the surprising influx, that is — of Democrats to the gubernatorial throne atop Capitol Hill in the 1954 campaign changed all that. This first success in 20 years not only startled Keystone State Democrats themselves, but but Democrats on the national level as well, to say nothing of chagrined, flustered and defeated Pennsylvania Republicans.

Since those days the aroma insofar as Pennsylvania has been concerned has changed drastically.

Eye-rubbing Washingtonian Democrats began to look in the direction of Pennsylvania as a possible sleeper; a hopeful sign that might well warrant nurturing. The successful assault on Capitol Hill four years later in 1958 of Democratic gubernatorial hopeful David Leo Lawrence settled the matter.

Thereafter the picture changed drastically. Democratic strategists placed Pennsylvania in the "to be fought for" column.

Republicans by this time recovered from their surprise and ignominious defeats of 1954 and 1958 finally reached the bristling point and agreed that some attention had to be paid to Pennsylvania after all.

Upshot of this internal scrambling was the decision to bring into the Keystone State top-flight national level brass — even down to the presidential level; not that this hadn't been done before — it had — but this time instead of simply advertising a tooth paste in passing courtesy, it became a boondoggling hard-nosed campaign strategy.

The pattern now is the same this year. Republicans at the moment don't happen to have a President they can whisk on the scene but they do have an ex-President in the person of Dwight Eisenhower who already has a couple of scheduled appearances.

Democrats are slightly more fortunate in this respect inasmuch as a member of the Kennedy clan happens to be the nation's current chief executive. This President Kennedy himself will be on board the Keystone State political yacht possibly two or three times this fall, but most notably for the $100-a-plate fund raising dinner here in Harrisburg September 20.

It's indeed big cooings this year for Pennsylvania — and when you stop to look back over the years, quite a change at least from the somewhat dismal routine of less than a decade ago!

The prestige boys are laying it on the line this time.

Washington, Sept. 11—A sharp policy dispute has developed within the Kennedy Administration on whether the U.S. should support the establishment of a Cuban government-in-exile.

This major policy disagreement has been going on at the very top of the government since President Kennedy disclosed that the Soviets had shipped huge quantities of arms, including ground-to-air missiles, to Cuba.

Proposed by Senator George Smathers, D-Fla., the secretary of the powerful Senate Democratic Conference, the Cuban government-in-exile plan was put before President Kennedy at last week's White House meeting with Democratic Congressional leaders.

Strongly endorsed by the other Congressional leaders, the Smathers proposal calls for the U.S. to recognize and furnish arms and money to a government-in-exile headed by an outstanding refugee to be picked by Cubans now in the U.S. Its headquarters would be one of the Caribbean nations near Cuba.

Already, Guatemala, Costa Rica, and El Salvador have offered to permit this anti-Castro group to organize in their countries if the Kennedy administration gives assurances of its support.

So far as can be determined, President Kennedy has not yet decided to accept or reject the

The Allen-Scott Report

JFK Postpones Decision On Cubans In Exile

Smathers plan. Instead, he acted cautiously, asking the Florida legislator to furnish a memorandum outlining in much greater detail the main objectives of his proposal.

Earlier in the meeting, Smathers told the President that a green light for the establishment of an exile government would be the first step to give the U.S. a legal basis on which to aid the Cuban refugees in toppling Castro's red regime.

Smathers argued that this U.S. action would have a tremendous psychological effect on the harassed Cuban underground, which is fighting for its very life. He flatly warned that if the U.S. did not act immediately future efforts to free Cuba from Communism would be very costly in American lives.

THE OPPOSITION — The Smathers proposal has brought strong opposition from Secretary of State Dean Rusk, and Special Assistants to the President McGeorge Bundy and Arthur Schlesinger, Jr.

This trio expressed concern about the political and military consequences in the hemisphere and elsewhere of providing U.S. support for a government-in-exile that was planning to use military force to achieve political ends.

They vigorously argued that it would be next to impossible to get the Cuban exiles to agree on one refugee leader to head up the government-in-exile. This assertion was flatly denied by Smathers and his supporters, who claimed the Cuban refugees are ready to unite behind one of a half-dozen Cuban leaders, now members of the Cuban Revolutionary Council, or with other refugee groups in the U.S.

Another argument offered against the Smathers proposal by Rusk - Bundy - Schlesinger group - was that nothing should be done until the foreign ministers of Brazil and Mexico are consulted, since their governments have opposed recognition of a Cuban government-in-exile.

Supporters of the Smathers proposal, including the Joint Chiefs of Staff and Ambassador deLeesepes S. Morrison, U.S. Representative to the Organization of American States, countered this objection by reporting that nine Latin American countries, including Venezuela, are ready to approve it now.

Faced with these opposing views, President Kennedy decided to put off a decision until the matter could be formally threshed out in the National Security Council, the government's highest policy making body. The NSC is expected to meet later in the week.

Meanwhile, both groups are flooding the White House with memorandums in support of their opposing positions. Also, they are trying to enlist additional supporters for their cause.

The policy conflict is not following normal departmental lines. For instance, the Central Intelligence Agency, while deeply involved in the discussions, is not united for or against the Smathers proposal.

The State Department is more dubious about backing a proxy Cuban government than any other agency of the Kennedy Administration. Legislators who have talked with Secretary Rusk say that he appears afraid to support any policy that completely shuts the door to future U.S. dealings with Castro.

INSIDE CUBA — U. S. intelligence sources have pinpointed nine Soviet missile sites in Cuba. These sites contain ground-to-air missiles with a range of from 80 to 90 miles, not 25, as reported by President Kennedy.

Naval intelligence has photographs of two Soviet ships that carry missiles, with ranges of more than 100 miles. These oversized patrol craft were turned over to the Cubans late in August . . . An estimated 50 Soviet jet pilots are now in Havana. These pilots are not instructors, but "volunteers" that have joined the Cuban Airforce.

Pike County First In Registration

PIKE County registrars looked over the books while waiting to register voters for the Nov. 6 election. They discovered that no one was coming in to register, they already had 60 more people registered than were over 21-years of age.

Jay Schroeder, chairman of the county commissioners, pointed out that those not yet 21 but registered, would be legal voting age by Nov. 6.

Pike County has been designated No. 1 by the Pennsylvania Citizen's Non-partisan Register and Vote Committee. Schroeder and other political leaders are proud of the designation.

Adding to the confusion, Lehman Township supervisors had to pay for a second vote count following the primary election to discover that more than 70 people in the township had been skipped during the census taking, adding up to a distorted fact that more adults had voted in the township than apparently lived there. Checking turned up that 70 people had been absent during the poll.

Now the problem seems to be that the total population of persons 21 or over, even with the addition of the 70 missed by the census, is two less than the number of registered voters. Schroeder said "a couple of people probably died and their names were not removed from the rolls."

Pike County has a total of 9,158 persons living on its 545 square miles of area and the distinction of being the only county to have every person eligible to vote registered.

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

There are parents who come home from kindergarten or first grade with tears in their eyes at the empty house they have to face; who rejoice when their children are so homesick at camp that they have to go and bring them home; who want their children to go to college but regard it as the entering wedge which eventually will drive them apart.

I can sympathize — but not commiserate. As a parent, my sole responsibility has been to provide the environment in which children could develop into the best possible adults, ready to take over the responsibilities for themselves and the welfare of the world they live in.

Which doesn't mean that the sight of cars passing through with one of those clothes bars bending under the weight of what Freshman girls deem bare essentials for facing college doesn't bring a nostalgic pang. Or that the drooping shoulders of mother, trudging back from a mailbox that should have contained a letter from a college son, doesn't bring a familiar tug.

Parents need to be needed for something besides tuition and weekly allowances. But not necessarily, to the extent of Bob Haigh, for instance, who came home to find his daughter Linda lighting out with his trombone for a Freshman boy who had come to hand camp without, of all things, his instrument.

Reminds me of that eventual economics major, now nameless, who went to college without the checkbook in which his entire year's expenses had been so painstakingly, and thoroughly included. Or the numerous brides who cut off the newspaper wedding forms in their honeymoon luggage — you remember, the bride who went on her honeymoon with no luggage at all.

Whatever one professed, and self-consciously noble, aims, most parents have a sneaking satisfaction in resuming temporarily the all-wise, omnipotent role they relinquished, willy nilly, the first day the children came home from school with the dicta "My teacher says —"

New Law Interpretation Of School Bible Reading

NEWFOUNDLAND — "A strange, new interpretation of the law concerning the reading of the Bible in the public schools comes to us, an interpretation the right to impose its will upon the majority," the Rev. Douglas Frankford Memorial Methodist Ingram Cloud, pastor of the Church, Philadelphia, told the congregation of the South Sterling Methodist Church.

"When this happens, you no longer have a democracy," he said. "You have another form of oligarchy. As Bishop Fred Pierce Corson pithily cites this new interpretation, this is the dogma that 'if one does not want it, then none can have it.' " "I think our special three-judge court which declared unconstitutional that section of the Pennsylvania school code which says 'every morning the schools of this commonwealth shall be opened by reading ten verses selected from the Bible without comment, and that this Bible reading shall be followed by the unison recitation of the Lord's Prayer, except that, where the pupils or their families object to this exercise, those pupils may be excused from such exercises upon the written request of their parents, - that court has lit a candle to see the sun, and, inadvertently, has endorsed atheism as the religion of the United States. What they are saying is that the religion of the non-religious shall be the religious principle of the Constitution."

Sees Violation
"This, in itself, this action of this very court, is a violation of the first amendment to the Constitution."

"If this interpretation stands, what then happens when next you are called to swear an oath in that court? If you refuse to do so, what happens to the dignity of the court, and to our legal and judicial procedure? What happens to the pledge of allegiance which was amended by Congress itself to say 'This nation under God'? What will happen to the minted and printed money of the United States which bears the legend 'In God we trust'? Shall we now revise the motto to say there is no God. We do not trust?"

"How will the President be sworn in without the use of a Bible? He may not need to be, for a decision like this opens the door for any Castro who wants to usurp our government; religious freedom, and with it all freedom, can be throttled by any tiny group of clever and determined plotters who can impose their will upon the majority via judges who cater to peculiar local legal opinions without sufficient regard to the long-term historic bases of the constitutional law."

"Must Speak In Favor"
"What can we do about it? We must speak in favor of public reading of the Bible and prayer in school every day. We should take time to write to the school board, . . . to the superintendent of schools in areas where an effort is being made to keep Bible reading a part of the school day. We should go to our representatives in Congress and press them to work for an amendment to the Constitution which expressly permits each state to specify specific religious exercises for incorporation in the school day in each state, as each state may so desire."

The Rev. Mr. Cloud is a Summer resident of Greentown.

Clark To Present Housing Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., says he will introduce this week a bill that would provide improved housing for the elderly.

Clark said the measure would involve increased authorizations for direct loans to finance housing for the elderly, a major research program to better judge their housing needs, and federal aid to communities making surveys of these needs.

Clark heads a subcommittee which issued a 57-page report on housing for the elderly yesterday.

The report said almost half of this nation's citizens who are 65 or older need better housing.

The subcommittee's study was based in part on public hearings in Philadelphia, Scranton, Pa., and several other cities in various parts of the country.

Meanwhile, housing administrator Robert C. Weaver announced the formation of a 25-member panel of specialists to serve as an advisory committee on housing for senior citizens. He said the group would hold its first meeting next month.

Dr. Cecil G. Sheps of the University of Pittsburgh was among those named to the committee which will advise the Housing and Home Finance Agency.

Outlook For ESSC

Defense Looms Key To Success

THE KEY to success in this year's East Stroudsburg State College's football Warriors may well lie in the defensive unit of the club, according to Coach Jack Gregory, embarking on his fifth season as head coach.

"We have developed a national reputation defensively to the extent we have had coaches from all over the East requesting information on our defensive operations," Gregory said yesterday.

And, he adds: "When the other team scores against us, they will have earned it, that's for sure."

National Recognition
Gregory's statements are well backed up by statistics. Last year, when the Warriors enjoyed a fine 7-1 season (they lost only to West Chester) the team ranked No. 2 in total defense among small colleges. During the last three years, the Warriors also have gained national recognition for its rushing defense.

Although stressing the finer arts of defense, the Warriors' offensive alignment is certainly nothing to shrug off lightly with the likes of Quarterback Bill Lewis, potential Little All-American, and Halfback Toby Barkman, who last year received honorable mention as a sophomore on the Little All-America eleven.

Gregory has but five starters from last year's eleven returning to the ESSC campus this year. They are Co-Captains Lewis and Joe Heverin, end; Barkman, Tackle Bruce Thomas and Guard Horace Cole, former East Stroudsburg High School grad.

"Best Back"
Barkman also is regarded by Gregory as "perhaps the best back we have this year."

Asked if his outlook in high for duplicating last season's outstanding record, the head coach merely commented:

"We never live on last year—that's past history. Everything depends on this year."

"I will say one thing, though," Gregory continued, "This year's team should be a good one to watch from the spectator viewpoint."

"We look for a real, tough season," he added, "and if the boys give us good, hard football, that's all we can ask."

So far as the Pennsylvania State College Conference goes this season, Gregory predicts "a real tough one." He says this year that "every club in the Conference has improved itself and has a good chance."

Probable Starters
The probable starting lineup for the Warriors who face a tough Montclair State College foe in their home opener Saturday night will be:

Heverin and Andy Michaylo, ends; Thomas and Bill Slesosky, tackles; Cole and Mel Fager, guards; Barry Yoder, center; Lewis, quarterback; Barkman and Garry Willhite, halfbacks; and Dan Bellevue, fullback.

The assistant coaches are: Charles Reese, backfield; Gary Soderberg, line, and Andy Malosky, end coach.

In addition to Montclair State, the remainder of the schedule this year is: Sept. 28 — West Chester, away (night); Oct. 6 — Kutztown, home; Oct. 13 — Cheyney, home; Oct. 20 — Mansfield, away; Oct. 27 — Millersville, away; Nov. 3 — Courtland (N.Y.), away; Nov. 10 — Bloomsburg, home.

Lehigh Woe Is Shortage Of Reserves

BETHLEHEM — Lehigh's defending Lambert Cup football champions have completed their first week of preseason workouts under new head coach Mike Cooley, and the Engineer mentor has inherited a problem he had frequently faced as Lehigh's line coach — a lack of depth in the forward wall.

In recent seasons, Lehigh's football teams have not been noted for their overwhelming numbers, and that trend has continued in '62. Only 45 players reported a week ago, and that number has been further reduced to 38 by dropouts and academic troubles. The losses include letterman John Chambers, a junior end from Monroeville who went on scholastic probation, and only 22 linemen remain to man seven posts. Cooley, in shuffling his available manpower, has moved three players to new positions. Bill Rezak, Syracuse (N.Y.) senior who played guard as a sophomore and lettered at end in 1961 despite an injury, returns to the interior line as a tackle. Rezak, 6'4 and 200 pounds, will battle for the first-string left tackle berth with junior transfer Don Marshall.

In the other changes, junior Willis Wampler (Westminster, Md.) has impressed Cooley in workouts at guard after spending the 1961 season as a reserve at end, and sophomore Tom Frazier (Malverne, N.Y.) has moved from fullback to center. Frazier, in his unaccustomed role as lineman, will back up two senior veterans at center after playing in the backfield with the 1961 freshmen.

Considering their numbers, the Engineers can ill afford any injuries, and have been lucky in that respect so far. The only players currently missing practice are senior halfback Jim Wilson (Montclair, N.J.) and sophomore quarterback Mike Yots (Verona), both of whom are hobbling with minor leg troubles. Junior halfback Charlie LaMotta (Pittsburgh) is seeing limited practice activity to speed his recovery from a knee operation, but his absence is balanced by the strong return of senior halfback Ed Winchester (Warwick, N.Y.) who was hobbled by a leg injury for most of the 1961 season.

Giants Tied For First Temporarily

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Willie Mays and Chuck Hiller homered and Felipe Alou whacked his ninth consecutive hit Monday as the San Francisco Giants beat Pittsburgh 4-1 for their sixth straight victory.

The triumph again lifted San Francisco into a temporary tie with Los Angeles for the National League lead. The Dodgers needed a night game victory over the Chicago Cubs to again pull one-half game ahead.

"Billy O'Dell beat Harvey Hadick in a pitching duel of lefthanders to notch his 17th victory against 12 defeats.

Laver Completes Net Grand Slam

By WILL GRIMSLEY

Associated Press Sports Writer.
FOREST HILLS, N. Y. (AP) — Rocket Rod Laver got his grand slam, a feat which may be worth $150,000 in immediate pro offers, and Darlene Hard's reign as women's queen ended in tears and acrimony Monday in the climax of the 32nd National Tennis Championships.

The quick, left-handed Laver, shots coming off his racket like sparks from a sparkler, crushed his fellow Queenslander and Davis Cup teammate, Roy Emerson,

6-2, 6-4, 5-7, 6-4, in the men's final at the West Side Tennis Club. Reversal of '61.

This reversed last year's finish when Emerson won.

The 23-year-old Brisbane wizard thus completed a sweep of major championships — Australian, French, Wimbledon and U.S., — which only one other player, Don Budge in 1938, had ever achieved.

Also it marked the seventh straight year, since Tony Trabert of Cincinnati won for the United States in 1955, that an Australian had taken off with the top prize of American tennis and it was the sixth time in the same period that two Aussies had battled for the crown.

For the first time in history, an Australian also captured the women's championship when Margaret Smith, a big, pleasant girl from Sydney, beat Miss Hard of Long Beach, Calif., holder of the title for the last two years, in a weird, incident-packed match, 9-7, 6-4.

Blows Set Point
Miss Hard blew a set point in the first set. She served a total of 16 double-faults, five of them in one game.

In the sixth game of the second set, two line calls went against her and she walked back to the green canvas at the end of the center court, put her head in her arms and cried convulsively.

With the sympathy of the crowd of 8,000 with her, she fought back to level the set at 4-4, then proceeded to throw the match by purposely tossing away points.

"How can you play tennis when you're crying?" she said. "I deliberately starting missing shots in the middle of the second set after I got disturbed."

Asked about the effect of the line calls, she said: "You saw them—I won't say anything else."

Misses Opportunity
Miss Hard missed an excellent opportunity to become the first three-time winner of the women's title since Maureen (Little Mo) Conolly did it in 1961-53.

The powerfully-built, 20-year-old Miss Smith, who trains in a gymnasium, was apparently tired and ragged after her brilliant victory Sunday over Brazil's Maria Bueno. Her service lacked zip and she lacked her usual touch.

Miss Smith later teamed with Australian Fred Stolle for a 7-5, 6-2 victory over Leslie Turner of Australia and Frank Froehling of Coral Gables, Fla., in the mixed doubles final.

Best Chance
Leasher, who was married six months ago, was the last of the speed drivers scheduled to try for Cobb's record this season. Veterans of the Salt Flats thought he had the best chance to break it.

His car, which developed 9,200 pounds of thrust, was clocked through the measured mile Sunday at 330 m.p.h. but tires said he may have reached 375.

$50,000 Doesn't Count With PGA
DUNEDIN, Fla. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus picked up $50,000 for his victory in the World Series of Golf over the weekend, but it doesn't count towards his money standing with the Professional Golfers' Association.

Nicklaus is listed third with $53,518, won in official tournaments co-sponsored by the PGA.

Arnold Palmer, who tied with Gary Player for second money in the weekend match, is still ranked first with a record breaking total of $80,198. Gene Littler is second with $63,090 and Bill Casper fourth with $52,813.

Player is ranked fifth with $44,238.

Runnels' BA Still A. L. Tops

NEW YORK (AP) — Pete Runnels of Boston has virtually sewed up the American League batting championship and Tommy Davis of the Los Angeles Dodgers has a commanding lead in the National League runs batted in competition. But the four other titles in the important hitting categories are still up for grabs.

With only three weeks remaining in the regular 1962 campaign, Tommy Davis heads the National League batting parade by only a single point over Cincinnati's Frank Robinson; Willie Mays of San Francisco has a four-homer lead over Hank Aaron of Milwaukee in the senior circuit; Harmon Killebrew of Minnesota leads Los Angeles' Leon Wagner by two in the American League home run race and Norm Siebern of Kansas City holds a two-RBI lead over Killebrew.

Runnels At .335
Runnels, seeking his second batting crown, picked up three points to .335 in last week's games with 10 hits in 26 times at bat. Meanwhile, Chuck Hinton of Washington moved into the runner-up position on a six-point increase to .314. Hinton had 11 hits in 26 tries.

Floyd Robinson of the Chicago White Sox dropped one notch to third at .309. He lost four points with a 5-for-27 performance. Rich Rollins and Siebern are deadlocked for fifth at .307. The figures include Sunday's games.

In the National League, Davis slumped three points to .339 while Robinson remained at .338. Davis had six hits in 23 attempts while Robinson collected nine hits in 26 tries.

Musial Third
Veteran Stan Musial of St. Louis remained in third place at .335. Musial had six hits in 18 tries. Davis drove in four runs, giving him 132 for the year. Robinson is next with 123. Siebern and Killebrew each had two RBIs, putting their totals at 106 and 104 respectively.

Killebrew has 37 homers and Wagner 35. Each hit one last week. Mays failed to connect and remains with 42 home runs while Aaron had a pair and lifted his total to 38.

Midget Gridders Meet Tomorrow

Squad Is Confident

S-burg Drilling For Leighton

PRACTICE sessions continue at Stroud-Union and a feeling of optimism and confidence reigns supreme as the Mountaineers started their final paces before launching a new football season this Friday evening at Gordon Giffels Field. Game time is 8 o'clock.

The backfield is continuing their workouts as well as can be expected and the line play has been satisfactory according to coach Jerry Stulgaitis.

Weaknesses which were prevalent the earlier part of the drills have been worked out. According to Stulgaitis, "The practice sessions are going real well, the squad is working very hard, and the Mountaineers will be at full strength for Friday's game against Leighton."

The ball club has established its strategy as far as defense and offense is concerned and the mental attitude is one of satisfaction on the part of the Mountaineers. The offense is jelling according to their coach, and by Friday they will be at full strength, and in top physical condition.

Football To Fly Around Region

By MR. PIGSKIN
(First In A Series)

FOOTBALL, the one sport which excites Pocono Mountain and Slate Belt fans more than any other athletic endeavor, throws itself at the area this weekend in full force. Officially the scholastic grid season got under way last Friday and Saturday but it was only a watering-down of the grid diehard's mouth.

In the Daily Record circulation area eight elevens—seven scholastic and one college—will vie for honors in conferences, leagues and independently. Three of the scholastic teams are based in the Lehigh-Northampton League, one in the Lehigh Valley League, one in the Pennsylvania Teachers State College Conference, while three play independent schedules.

Pen Argyl, Bangor and East Stroudsburg are three of the participants in the wide-spread L-N loop. Pen Argyl, off its record last year and its returning free-wheeling backfield, is the choice to cop honors in the circuit which boasts such fine schools as Nazareth, Wilson, Hellertown as well as Bangor and East Stroudsburg.

Team To Beat
The Green Knights, coached by Elwood Petchel, the former Penn State backfield phenom, are in the proud possession of three backs that did everything but sell tickets at Weona Park last season. The trio are Gary Heard, Bob Engler and Terry Sandt. The former two scored touchdowns last year like they were going out of vogue, while quarterback Sandt directed the eleven to an undefeated campaign in league play and to an over-all 9-1 record for the season.

Petchel, like others in his trade, is a pessimist—foreseeing many problems for his squad this year, including lack of depth, a weakened forward wall, and the role of favorite. The latter could be the biggest obstacle Pen Argyl faces as every foe will be out to unsettle the defending champions of the L-N.

East Stroudsburg, a team which occupied the same perch in the pre-season polls a year ago, is the dark horse contender this year in the Lehigh-Northampton scramble. Rated behind Pen Argyl, Wilson and Nazareth, the charges of Jack Kist are banking on a strong defense to get them by more publicized offenses.

Defense, Passing
Kist's key to success depends on the roles his two co-captains, Bud Stann and Mike Boushell play. Both, three year veterans, are the nucleus of a veteran forward wall and are the boys designated by the squad to lead the Cavaliers to another successful year.

Last year Eastburg ran up a 9-1 log, losing only to Pen Argyl. Built around the scoring duo of now departed Harold Myers and Brian Farris, the Cavaliers showed an attack that measured up many times to the Heard-

Engler offense at Pen Argyl. However, 1962 sees Kist balancing his offense with the running of Jim Steele and the right arm of quarterback Jack Van Horn. If Kist gets the up-front protection from 250-pound Stann, Boushell and their mates, Cavalier fans will see more football in the air than ever before.

Starting his 15th season, Kist would like nothing better than an anniversary present of a Lehigh-Northampton League crown. But whether the gift is forthcoming depends a lot on the pro-like pass protection Van Horn gets and whether the senior signal-caller can hit his targets when the opportunity presents itself. Then, of course, there are the intangibles that face all mentors throughout a tough 10-game schedule.

Forster At Bangor
Bangor High will unveil a new coach this season. He is Dick Forster, a man well known to Lehigh-Northampton fandom. Dick was a football assistant at East Stroudsburg High and also was head coach of basketball before he left the Cavaliers den for Lansford High.

It was in the Black Diamond territory that Forster gained his reputation for putting out a winner on the gridiron.

This isn't expected to be the Slayers year to gloat about their finest campaign. Forster has a big rebuilding job ahead of him. But the record shows the newest Bangor tutor is not the losing type of a coach. While even his closest colleagues are not predicting a banner year for the Slayers, it has been established that the maroon will be the eleven which is most qualified "to pull the upset of the week against any foe."

Perhaps the biggest asset Forster has going for him is a stubborn line. If he gets the backs to jive, Bangor may turn into

TV Highlights

"THE LLOYD BRIDGES SHOW," starring Bridges as Adam Shepherd, a roving journalist, will make its debut on the CBS Television Network tonight from 8 to 8:30. In the series, Shepherd, through his imagination, projects himself into the role of the protagonist of the particular story he is covering. A small object found in the wreckage of a train, in a dead man's effects may suggest a story to the writer. Once the clue is found, Bridges, as Shepherd, assumes the role he imagines.

Don Ameche, host of "International Showtime" will discuss the disappearance of the small circuses in America in contrast with their success in Europe on "Today" this morning from 7 to 9 a. m. Hugh Downs is host. Chs. 3 and 4.

Lyle Bettger guest stars as the leader of an outlaw gang in tonight's repeat episode of "Laramie," Chs. 3 and 4 from 7:30 to 8:30. On "Alfred Hitchcock Presents" from 8:30 to 9, Anne Francis stars as a lonely woman who falsely reports to the police that she has seen a prowler, a repeat program. From 9 to 10 on "The Dick Powell Show," Peter Falk and Inger Stevens star in "The Price of Tomatoes." In this repeat drama a truck driver risks arrest when he gives a ride to a forlorn expectant mother who has entered the country illegally. Neville Brand and Robert Vaughn star on "Cain's Hundred," 10 to 11. A racketeer hires a public relations man to create a decent public image of him. (R)

On "The New Breed," Chs. 6 and 7 from 8:30 to 9:30, a girl's fall from a hotel window during a convention puzzles the Met squad. Leslie Nielsen stars, Edward Andrews and John Larkin are in the cast.

On Chs. 2 and 10 from 8 to 8:30 the premiere presentation of "The Lloyd Bridges Show" is called "Wherever I Enter." The courage of an unknown young doctor who dares to enter a shattered mine shaft in West Virginia to assist some men trapped in a disaster, sparks the imagination of Adam Shepherd, who pictures himself as an American doctor returning to his ancestral Greek island. Harry Guardino, Michael Constantine and Alejandro Rey are featured.

On "The Comedy Spot" from 9 to 10, Jim Hutton, Patricia Blair and Dorothy Provine co-star in a comic tale of the trials and tribulations of a newlywed couple attending the University of Southern California. Chs. 2 and 10. Keefe Brasselle, Jane Fonda, George Maharis and Fess Parker are celebrity guests on "Talent Scouts" from 10 to 11.

Lloyd Bridges guest stars on "Premiere" from 10 to 11, Chs. 6 and 7, in the true story of a man's fight to keep from losing his mind while being brainwashed in a Red Korean cell.

Tonight's "Best Movie" on channel 6 is "The Search" starring Montgomery Clift and Aline MacMahon. This is the moving story of a war orphan searching for his family in post-war Europe . . . and of an American GI who befriends the lad.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your last name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Interpreting
Berlin Not On U. N. Agenda

By MILTON BESSER
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Berlin is the hot potato missing from the menu as the U.N. General Assembly opens its 17th session Sept. 18, but it could be served up at any time.
That is the view expressed by many diplomatic sources here as they watch the drama being unfolded in the divided city and the repercussions in Washington and other world capitals.
While Berlin is not on the formal agenda of the session, it will rank high in the discussion of major international issues in policy debates.
As usual, the Communist countries can be expected to level the harshest kind of attack on the Bonn Republic and the Western Allies.
May Come Up
The neutral nations can be expected to come up with proposals for a solution involving the United Nations, and fervent pleas to both East and West to get together to

Slayer Pleads Guilty To Jail Break

BUTLER, Pa. (AP) — Convicted slayer Donald Montgomery pleaded guilty Monday to a jail breaking charge that stemmed from his 27-hour weekend flight from Butler County Jail.
Following the hearing, the 19-year-old Brackenridge youth was returned to the jail to await sentencing at a later date.
Montgomery scaled a jail wall Friday and got away on foot. He was captured Saturday in a wooded area within the Butler city limits.
Montgomery made the break while awaiting formal sentencing to life imprisonment in the arson death of Mrs. Pauline Ritter, 67, of Cabot last Jan. 20.
Meanwhile Judge Clyde S. Shumaker of Butler County authorized the 18-member grand jury, which convened Monday to conduct an investigation into Montgomery's escape.
Shumaker told the jurors they could question anyone they want. He said he believes investigation should be a local matter rather than a state matter.
He also said the prison board would meet shortly to discuss the escape.

New Trial Denied To Mrs. Wheeler

BUTLER, Pa. (AP) — Mrs. Mae Wheeler, former manager of the Workmens Building & Loan Association here, has been denied a motion for a new trial on her conviction for embezzlement and forgery.
Judge Morgan H. Sohn overruled the motion in Butler County Court yesterday and said in his opinion there were no grounds for a new trial.
Mrs. Wheeler was convicted on Oct. 18, 1961, on 55 counts of embezzlement and five of forgery in a $450,000 bond. She is currently free on bond.
Her attorney, A.R. Singolani, said he would study the ruling and decide on an appeal to the State Superior Court.
The Workmens Building & Loan Association has since merged with the Pittsburgh Home Savings and Loan Association.

Reis Trial Postponed To November

POTTSVILLE, Pa. (AP) — Lilian Reis, 33-year-old Philadelphia night club owner charged with conspiring to rob a safe of a wealthy coal operator, Monday won postponement of her second trial until November.
Miss Reis, a dancer who once toiled in the chorus line of the club she now runs, was tried in Schuylkill County Common Pleas Court about a year ago. The jury, after hearing testimony for nearly a month, couldn't agree on a verdict.
She was indicted with five men on charges of planning the 1959 robbery of a safe in the home of John B. Rich. The indictment, based on Rich's report to police, said the loss totalled about $10,000 in cash and jewelry.
But police witnesses at Miss Reis' first trial contended the loot was around $475,000, all in cash. Pennsylvania's Supreme Court recently denied a request by Miss Reis to move the trial to another county. She contended unsuccessfully that she couldn't get a fair trial in this hard coal area.
Monday her new attorneys, William Krenkecz and Miss Johanne Zerby Martz, said they couldn't go on trial now because they are still awaiting receipt of an official transcript.
Miss Martz asserted the defense needs the record of the first trial so it can petition the court to suppress certain evidence illegally obtained.
Judge James J. Curran said "the defendant in a criminal case has the right to an official copy of the transcript. . . the rights of the defendant must be protected."
Three men already have been convicted of participating in the burglary, and all are seeking new trials. A fourth man is still to be tried.
The fifth male defendant, Vincent Blaney, was found murdered in 1960, his chain-weighted body pulled from the Atlantic Ocean near Cape May, N.J.

Pat Rooney, Entertainer, Dies At 82

NEW YORK (AP) — The rhythmic feet of Pat Rooney, 82, are still in death. One of the all-time great song-and-dance men, he died of a stroke Sunday night.
Hands in pockets, a pixy smile on his face, Rooney danced through life to the tune of "The Daughter of Rosie O'Grady," delighting audiences from coast to coast since his debut at 10.
Funeral services will be held at 1 p.m. Wednesday at the Walter B. Cooke Funeral Chapel on West 22nd Street, with burial in Evergreen Cemetery, Brooklyn.
Rooney was an entertainer in the same corny but loveable style of two famed contemporaries, the late George M. Cohan and Eddie Cantor, now virtually retired.
Cohan's trademark was a cane, and he sang of America and its "Yankee Doodle dandies." Cantor's stock in trade was a wistful, banjo-eyed dance, hands in front of him with palms together.
Rooney was a quaint, appealing little man, only 5 feet 3. When he stuck his hands in his pockets and went into his clog, he captivated audiences that spanned three generations.
Born on the lower East Side, Rooney was the son of the original Pat Rooney Sr. of the entertainment world. His mother was Josie Granger, a ballet dancer in Rooney Sr.'s gaslight-era vaudeville show.
Rooney survived two wives. His third wife, Carmen, was with him when a stroke hit him as he watched television at their uptown Broadway hotel apartment.
Even in his final moments the gallant old trouper seemed to feel that he was onstage. As her husband was dying, Mrs. Rooney said: "He started to move his feet."

Bell Seeks Service Changes

HARRISBURG (AP) — The Bell Telephone Co. of Pennsylvania asked the Public Utility Commission Monday to approve service changes designed to save customers in three exchanges some $3.55 a year.
The tariff schedule filed with the PUC would eliminate or reduce mileage charges for customers in the firm's Easton, Kane and Mercer exchanges, effective Nov. 7.
The Easton exchange would include the community of Raubsville, eliminating mileage charges for 76 customers and reducing charges for 36 others.
Bell estimated savings to the customers of $2,360 a year.
In the Kane exchange 67 customers would have mileage charges eliminated and nine others would have charges reduced, resulting in an estimated saving of $1,065 a year. At the same time six customers would have their service upgraded at an increased charge totalling $175 a year.
Expansion of the Mercer exchange would eliminate mileage charges for 28 customers and reduce charges for 12 others for a net saving of about $210 a year.
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Eggs: Demand fair to good. Prices to retailers in cartons: Grade A large whites 25-26¢; Grade A medium whites 41-47¢; Grade A small whites 35-41¢; Grade B large whites and browns 46-51¢.

MILITARY AFFILIATE RADIO SYSTEM (MARS) is an important part of the overall operation of the 8369th Air Force Reserve Recovery Group, which has just completed its monthly week-end training at Group headquarters in Wyoming. A Cresco man, Major George Koerner, (at left), the electronic communications officer of the Group, and Major Frank Srebro, MARS director for the Group, are shown above. It is from this headquarters that direct communication via MARS has been established with the Group's two Squadrons, the 9200th at the Allentown-Bethlehem-Easton Airport, and the 9201st at the Wilkes-Barre-Scranton Airport. Majors Koerner and Srebro have also been able to maintain direct communication with the two squadrons as well as with Sector Headquarters, Continental Air Command, Greater Pittsburgh Airport, Coraopolis. The 8369th Group is under the command of Col. O. Peter Loretto, Dunmore.

Building Permits Show Increase

NEW YORK (AP)—The dollar value of building permits issued in the nation's 200 biggest cities continued upward in July, Dun and Bradstreet, Inc., reported. It said the total rose 1.8 per cent to $316,622,465 to continue a trend that dates to March. The total was the greatest so far this year and represents the first time in 1962 that permits have exceeded year-ago levels. The total was 4.3 per cent higher than in July 1961. Swelling the total was the $30 million Madison Square Garden project on the Pennsylvania Station site in New York.

Copper Output Is Reduced

NEW YORK (AP)—Phelps Dodge Corp. has further reduced copper output in its bid to adjust production to lower consumption. The firm, No. 2 producer in the United States, announced it is cutting back production of its Arizona mines by an additional four per cent or 1,000 tons a month. Virtually all major world producers have cut back output in recent months. Phelps Dodge first applied a reduction, six per cent early in July.

Paper Mill Production Up

NEW YORK (AP)—United States Paper Mills operated at 89.4 per cent of capacity in the week ended Sept. 1, compared with 91.1 per cent the previous week, the American Paper Pulp Association said. The week's ratio was almost exactly the same as the 89.5 per cent the same date a year earlier. The National Paperboard Association, meanwhile, reported paperboard production at 97 per cent of capacity for the week, the same as a week previous and two percentage points higher than for the same week a year earlier.

Q. I am told that Missouri Pacific Railroad class A stock could be a worthwhile speculation because it has "high leverage." Is it something special that makes this "class A" stock? What does high leverage mean?

A. It's called class A because Missouri Pacific Railroad has two classes of common stock outstanding — class A and class B. There are only 40,587 shares of the class B stock, so we won't go into the difference between the two classes here. It's the class A stock (1,871,781 shares outstanding) that are listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

In simple language, "high leverage" means that a company has a lot of debt. It means that a company borrows money and uses that money in its business (to build factories, buy equipment and such) so that the company will make more money.

Naturally, the company must pay interest on its debt and must either pay back the principal of the debt or refinance it as it comes due. If things go well, the company's profits (after meeting its debt obligations) will increase. Then the earnings on each share of common stock will rise.

The use of leverage can lift earnings per share sharply when things are going well for a company and can force earnings per share down sharply when things are not going well.

Missouri Pacific has over a half billion dollars in funded debt — bonds etc. Considering its huge size, a relatively minor change in total income (after meeting all expenses, including debt obligations) can make a big difference in net profits and, of course, earnings per common share.

Just now, the outlook for any immediate big improvement in Missouri Pacific class A earnings is considered to be somewhat bleak. But, over the long term, things should get better.

A major influence on the market price of Missouri Pacific class A stock has been the buying of that stock (661,000 shares) by Mississippi River Fuel Company. Recently Mississippi River Fuel came up with a plan to acquire control of Missouri Pacific through an exchange of shares — one and a third share of Mississippi River Fuel common stock for each share of Missouri Pacific class A.

Q. A few years ago I bought 60 shares of Bethlehem Steel common stock at $2 a share. My total cost, including commission was $3,152.60. "Bessie" is now selling way below the price I paid. If I sell my 60 shares this year, will I be able to report all the loss I take to offset my other income when I file my Federal income tax return?

A. You can use all the capital loss you establish by selling stock at a lower price than you paid. This would offset any capital gains you establish this year by selling stock at a higher price than you paid.

CONTINENTAL CHARM

At the St. Moritz, you sometimes forget you're in New York. Here is an independently owned hotel with Old World services. Newly decorated rooms and suites in the traditional manner afford an incomparable panorama of the park — with rates as pleasing as the view. Who would believe that this exclusively quiet location is only steps from the New York heartbeat.

If your capital losses are bigger than your capital gains, or if you don't have any capital gains (as your letter seems to indicate) up to $1,000 of this year's capital loss can be used to offset your other income.

Then the rest of your capital loss can be "carried over" and used to offset your other income for each of the next five years — up to $1,000 in each tax year.

In your case, if you sell your Bessie stock now, you would establish a capital loss of about $1,300. You could use $1,000 of this loss to offset your ordinary income on your 1962 income tax return and the rest (about $300) to offset your ordinary income on your 1963 return — assuming that you don't establish any capital gains in either year.
